NO. 294—SIXTY-THIRD YEAR VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1921 TWENTY PAGES

CABINET EFFORT FOR IRISH PEACE HAS NO SUCCESS

Sinn Fein and Ulster So Far Hold to Their Respective Attitudes, and Prospect of Effecting Any Compromise Is Slight—Allegiance to Crown Is Crucial Point.

WELL-INFORMED OBSERVERS LOOK FOR EARLY END OF CONFERENCE

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Mr. Lloyd George, who probably will be accompanied by Lord Birkenhead, is scheduled to meet Sir James Craig tomorrow in what may be the last effort to induce him, as Premier of Ulster, to discuss alternative plans devised to protect Ulster's interests under the proposed all-Ireland Parliament, which the Northern delegates thus far have refused to enter into.

EIGHT-HOUR BILL GOES TO DEFEAT

Labor Members Attempt to Make Their Point on Five Bills, but All Are Defeated on Division

By a vote of twenty-four to fifteen the House of Commons yesterday afternoon defeated the bill introduced by Major H. J. Burde, Independent member for Abernethy, and designed to bring into effect on May 1 next the legislation enacted last year to make effective an eight-hour bill in this Province when other Provinces in Canada enact similar legislation.

PROGRESS MADE WITH BUDGET

Mr. Bowser's Effort to Draw Minister of Finance on Probable Borrowing Requirements Proves Futile

The effort of Mr. W. J. Bowser, K.C., Opposition leader, last night to induce the Minister of Finance to take the House into his confidence and announce the possible extent of the government's borrowings for the coming year, failed when Hon. Mr. Hart, while admitting the money market had shown marked improvement within the past few weeks, refused to be drawn on the subject of likely financial demands of the administration for other than current outlays.

PRINCE HAS TRIUMPH IN VISIT TO BOMBAY

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Surveying the entire stay of the Prince of Wales in Bombay, after the Prince's departure from the city, The Daily Mail's Bombay correspondent says it was an unqualified success, and both the Prince and the people had every reason to be well content that all anticipatory misgivings were swept away by the tumultuous popular receptions.

RAND MINE INDUSTRY MAY BE CLOSED DOWN

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Sir Lionel Philips, prominently identified with the gold industry in the Transvaal, South Africa, in an interview with Reuters' Cape Town correspondent, stated emphatically that unless there was greater efficiency in the working of the mines, a large section of the Rand mining industry must close down.

BELFAST THUGS DO DEADLY WORK

Bombs Are Exploded in Three Tramcars, Killing Five Persons and Wounding Many—Dead Now Number 25

BELFAST, Nov. 24.—Two persons were killed outright and eight were wounded when a bomb exploded this evening in a tramcar carrying a load of shipyard workers along Royal Avenue. Throughout the day the city, which has been the scene of several outbreaks of shooting within the past three days, has been comparatively quiet. This new explosion, however, brought the total number of deaths since the disorders began to 22.

Effort in the negotiations with the Sinn Fein this week has been directed to devising some means for reconciling that divergence, but with little hope of success. Any agreement with the Sinn Fein that did not include allegiance to the Crown would, it is said, receive little support from other States in the Empire. Acts of the Parliament creating British Dominions give the King the power of vetoing all legislation, but the constitutional usage of this veto is now never exercised.

CIVIL SERVANTS ARE BARRED OUT

Cannot Become Candidates in Federal Election and Remain in Service—Case of Sergt. Rayfield at Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—The dismissal of Sergt. W. L. Rayfield, V.C., from his position in the department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, following his nomination as soldier candidate in East Toronto constituency, has caused a storm of protest and numerous telegrams are being sent to Ottawa requesting his reinstatement.

PLAN SERVICE WITH AIRSHIPS

Australia and Mother Country Look Into Question of Aerial Line Between Antipodes and Europe

LONDON, Nov. 24.—A cable from Reuters' London correspondent states that Premier Hughes has invited the House of Representatives to consider a proposal for an experimental air service between Australia and Europe, with airships as a first gift from the British Government.

It is estimated that the total cost for two years' service would be £1,400,000, of which Great Britain would contribute half, and the Dominions half. The British Dominions' contribution, being on a per capita basis, would cost roughly £800,000 for the experiment. Assuming that the Dominions' share was one-half, Australia's proportion would be about £200,000.

BRIAND INSISTS ON ARMED STATE

In Farewell Address to American People He Declares That Disarming of France Would End World Peace

FORMER GERMANY WOULD BE REVIVED

Democracy Would Be Overthrown and Imperialism Again Triumph—France Cannot Desert Peace Cause

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Disarmament of France would be a temptation for imperialistic Germany to come back into power, Premier Briand declared here tonight in a farewell address to the American people.

France, he said, wanted peace, and wanted to live on amicable terms with a democratic Germany. "But the former Germany has not disappeared," he asserted. "She is still trying to revive her old empire, still trying to keep an army in certain form."

Referring to the Washington conference, he declared he considered it the greatest honor of his political life to be a member. Whatever resolutions may be made, he added, they will mark a milestone of progress on the road to peace.

TELEPHONE OBJECTION PARTIALLY UPHELD

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—The complaint of the British Columbia Union of Municipalities, that the British Columbia Telephone Company, in establishing an additional exchange at Kerriadale, in the exchange territory of Eburne, had no right to fix a toll for messages between the two exchanges, has been partially upheld by the Board of Railway Commissioners, in a judgment issued today.

MR. CASTLEMAN LOSES HIS SUIT FOR WAGES

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 24.—Ruling that facts set out in the statement of claim did not justify a writ of mandamus, Mr. Justice Murphy today dismissed the suit brought by S. J. Castleman, former manager of the Hastings Street liquor vendor's establishment against the Liquor Control Board for a sum equivalent to one month's wages.

MR. HIRD'S REINSTATEMENT

NORTH VANCOUVER, Nov. 24.—A resolution calling for the reinstatement of Chief Game Inspector Hird, who was suspended recently pending investigation of charges laid against him in the House, was unanimously passed by the North Vancouver Fish and Game Association at a special meeting on Tuesday night, and it was decided to send a copy of the resolution to every member of the Provincial Legislature.

NANAIMO HEARS MR. C. H. DICKIE

Candidate Shows Danger to Canada From Either of Opposing Policies—Answers Reflections

NANAIMO, Nov. 24.—Mr. C. H. Dickie, National Liberal and Conservative candidate, Nanaimo, riding, addressed a well-attended meeting in the Opera House here this evening and received a very attentive hearing. Mr. Dickie expressed every confidence in victory for the Meighen Government, which was, after all, the most vital question of the day.

NAVAL DISARMAMENT

The Foreign Minister entered into a discussion of disarmament. Disarmament enters the field of practical politics when a definite limit is placed upon the size of the navies of certain great powers, said Lord Curzon, and still more when one of those powers comes forward and announces to the world that disarmament shall begin in her case by ceasing construction of ships which already have been commenced.

MUST APPLY ON LAND

"A third condition is that if we, who are the greatest naval power in the world, whose sea communications are the longest in the world, who have to defend coasts longer, and more exposed than any other empire in the world, who are dependent upon the command of the sea for our daily existence as a nation—if we are willing to reduce our naval strength, let no other powers be allowed to build up other engines or instruments of attack, either in the air or under the sea, which may render our sacrifices negative and which, so far from leaving us in the proud position of having an example, may leave us in the perilous position of having incurred an undue risk."

Declares That if France Pursues Isolated and Individual Policy She Will Not, in Long Run, Injure Germany, and Will Fail to Protect Herself—Uses Plain Language

WORLD CONFIDENCE IS BEST SAFEGUARD

Powers Will Not Tolerate Revival of Sword-Rattling—Germany Will Be Converted Into Peaceful Member of International Court—Work of Conference at Washington

LONDON, Nov. 24.—One of the most outspoken warnings ever addressed by the Foreign Minister of one nation to another friendly nation was delivered at a luncheon by Marquis Curzon today. The British Foreign Minister declared that if France pursued an isolated and individual policy she would not, in the long run, injure Germany and would fail to protect herself.

It was a warning couched, if anything, in plainer terms than a similar speech delivered by Premier Lloyd George last May, at the time when France was proceeding to the occupation of Germany's Ruhr towns, which created such a sensation.

Lord Curzon's address was directed primarily to the Washington Conference, but it was clearly an intimation to France of the effect of that country's attitude toward disarmament. It also applied with equal force to the French policy in the Near East.

"Peace will never be achieved," said Lord Curzon, "if any one power tries to steal a march on another and conclude an arrangement of its own accord."

The Foreign Minister bluntly reminded France that her safety lay, not in her own strength, but in the confidence of the world, and he cautioned France that she could not succeed by a revengeful policy toward Germany or be permitted by isolated action to frustrate the work of nations at Washington.

The speech, which occupied only half an hour in delivery, was remarkable for the expressed determination to bring Germany into the comity of nations.

MEMBER DEFENDS MEIGHEN POLICY

Hon. S. F. Tolmie, in First Campaign Speech on Island, Declares No Sane Man Would Urge Free Trade

A powerful plea in support of the Meighen administration, particularly in its adherence to "reasonable protection" to industries, was voiced by Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, last night, at St. Mary's Hall, Oak Bay.

It was Dr. Tolmie's first campaign speech in home territory, and in spite of the stormy weather, the hall was crowded. The minister spoke for nearly an hour, and gave a clear description of Federal policies and the conditions which had led to the adoption of a matter-of-fact business statement without attempt at political effect, and for that reason, doubly impressive.

He was given an attentive hearing, many of his assertions being received with warm applause. He was cheered as he left the hall.

Mr. W. Barratough presided. Although the meeting was in the interests of the candidature of Mr. C. H. Dickie, Meighen nominee for Nanaimo, Mr. Dickie was unable to be present, as he is busy campaigning in another section of the riding. Speakers besides Dr. Tolmie were Messrs. Munro Miller and Alex. Thompson.

"The present election was brought on hurriedly in Canada to test the feeling of the people on the tariff issue," said Dr. Tolmie. "Canada has been under a protective tariff for a long time. Under both Liberal and Conservative administrations we had a tariff. Within recent years a new element has sprung up in the prairies clamoring for free trade. Since the Fordney tariff movement in the United States the leaders have pulled their horns in a little, but they have made a big noise, anyway. The Government candidate was beaten by them at Medicine Hat. The Progressives captured the Alberta Provincial election, too. Premier Meighen felt that it was time to go to the country and ask the people how they stood on the tariff question. The election of December 4 will settle that."

"World business today is in turmoil. Countries are slashing prices and misrepresenting conditions in order to 'beat' each other."

ROYAL CITY TEACHERS PREPARE TO RESIGN

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 24.—Seventy-four teachers of the high and public schools here have their resignations ready to present to the board of school trustees unless that body puts into effect the award of the board of arbitration last May approving the scale of wages sanctioned by the Teachers' Federation. The award means an increase in salaries for the teachers, but the board has refused to comply. The resignations would take effect the end of the year.

The teachers held a meeting recently at which this line of action was approved.

THIRTY-SIX DIE IN BOMBAY RIOTS

Three Europeans Are Included in Victims—Lord Ronaldshay Severely Condemns Disturbances Organized in

LONDON, Nov. 24.—In the recent disturbances at Bombay, India, coincident with the visit of the Prince of Wales, the total casualties, according to Reuters' correspondent in that city, were 36 killed, including three Europeans, and 150 sent to hospital suffering from injuries.

The situation is becoming normal, the correspondent adds. BARODA, British India, Nov. 24.—The Jackwar of Baroda gave a state banquet in honor of the Prince of Wales yesterday. In the speech which he made to the assembly, the Prince eulogized the happy conditions prevailing in Baroda and expressed regret over the shortness of his stay.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—A Reuters cable from Calcutta says that when addressing the Legislature, the Earl of Ronaldshay, Governor of Bengal, referring to the rebellious manifestations in Calcutta and other points on November 17, the day the Prince of Wales landed at Bombay, was appalled by this "wholesale terrorism and intimidation the normal life of the city has been gravely interfered with."

A situation, he said, had arisen demanding drastic action, and he appealed for co-operation of law-abiding citizens.

The Governor announced that the Government would not hesitate to use all its powers and ask for more if necessary, in order to put down the disorders.

HURLS GAUNTLET TO OPPONENTS

Police Commissioner Hall Charges That Any Opposition to His Re-election Will Be From Degenerate Forces

"The man who opposes me in the coming election for the vacancy on the Police Commission will have to stand the brunt of being classed as the candidate of the forces of degeneracy in the community, and I wish to state that no respectable man dare face it, for his chances in the future would be surely killed."

Thus declared Police Commissioner Ernest Hall last night at a poorly attended gathering of the Citizens' League, an organization recently formed by supporters of the police commissioner chosen by the electorate last January. There were citizens present, including the police commissioner, who was being presided over by Rev. William Stevenson, the president of the organization. "It is expressed now on all sides that if an election is necessary, it will not be a fight between individuals, but a straight contest between principles," said Dr. Hall, who declared that there was very little business for the league to consider until an opponent appeared in the field.

Rev. William Stevenson was the chief speaker. He outlined the fight which the Ministerial Association and the Women's Christian Temperance Union had put up before the Municipal Committee of the Provincial House against the return to the appointment of police commissioners by the Government instead of the popular election of them by the public. Although a number of people have been anxious for a return to the former method of appointment of commissioners, the speaker said that he was thankful that the Municipal Committee decided to retain any change.

Mr. Clarence Harris stated that the Attorney-General favored the old system of selecting the police commissioners. He was glad to see the great sympathy which has been expressed with the present system.

Mr. George Bell moved that a resolution be passed expressing regret that an attempt had been made to return to the old system of selecting the police commissioners and placing on record the League's appreciation of the Municipal Committee's action in leaving the act unchanged for another year. The resolution was carried.

Hon. Mr. Hart replied that all the loans of the former Government and many of the present had been floated in New York. Last year the exchange item exceeded $100,000, and it is estimated that this year it will aggregate $180,000. He thought it would be possible to float any new loans at par or better, in which latter case the Government would profit by the premium. The Government would not issue loans only as the market conditions warranted. He was in position to tell the House in a day or two what the Government's loan requirements would amount to.

Mr. Bowser—Am I right in suggesting that you are figuring on borrowing nine and one-half millions?

The Minister was not prepared to answer the question, but reiterated the money market had shown marked improvement in the past two or three weeks.

Cattle Tests
Turning to the estimates for the Department of Agriculture, one for $18,450 for the veterinary branch, Hon. Mr. Barrow explained that the Deputy Minister of Agriculture is now in Ottawa seeking to make arrangements with the Federal department for co-operation, whereby the latter will take over the question of testing cattle for tuberculosis within municipalities on application from the municipal authorities. During the past year, he stated, there have been 2,419 dairies visited and 16,724 cattle tested, 935 of which reacted, a percentage of 5.5, or higher than last year. There were some 14,000 dairy cattle in the Province over two years old, and to make a thorough job of testing Federal assistance must be secured. Up to the present the herds of the Province have been kept cleaner than in any other Province. In the States $3,978,000 was spent for this purpose last year.

The item of $4,520, statistics in connection with the Department of Agriculture, drew criticism from Mr. V. Anderson, liberal member for Kamloops, at the meeting. He pointed out that the department was collecting such information, an obsolete and unreliable one, he held.

Hon. Mr. Barrow stated that it was the system adopted by the Federal Government, and experience had shown that 83 per cent of the cards sent out were returned and the data secured had proved reliable.

Compensation
The Minister of Agriculture stated that $32,902 has already been paid out for compensation in connection with tuberculosis cattle this year, the payment of the balance due being one for the Federal Government. The question of the sale of carcasses of diseased cattle was one wholly for the Dominion. He claimed the Provincial Government has no jurisdiction nor has the Legislature power to authorize or order slaughter of such cattle. The vote for the purpose this year was $15,000, one-half of that last year.

Premier Oliver made it clear that the Government is not selling such diseased meat. Mr. Ian Mackenzie called attention to the fact that the Minister of Agriculture's department estimates this year showed no reduction from those of last year, and he moved that an item of $500 for "gopher extermination competition" be eliminated.

The Minister took the suggestion seriously and proceeded at length to argue in favor of the vote.

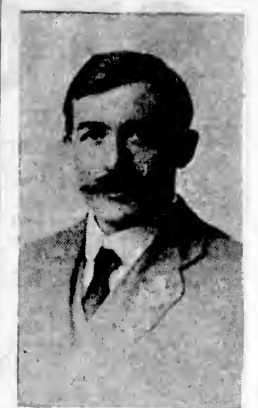

Withdrawal Opposition
Major Burde did not think it necessary to induce the young idea with money to catch gophers. He opined it was but a small area of the Province infested with the pest. When informed that the gophers were found in the mountains, he said he was not prepared to withdraw his objection to the vote.

Deputy-Minister of Education, R. J. Willis, from $4,000 to $4,500, was questioned by Mr. Pooley, who failed to see where any pruning was being done when the first item showed an increase of $500. The employee had only been in the service of the Government for a few months.

Hon. Dr. Pooley then introduced an amendment reducing the salary of the Deputy-Minister to $4,000 a year, which was lost on a vote of 15 to 12. In moving the vote for agricultural education, under the head of the Minister of Education, Premier Oliver last night intimated that the estimate would be considerably pruned in order to meet contingencies which were unforeseen when the estimates were first printed. These contingencies included the unemployment question and the damage caused by the recent floods to dykes and roads which required immediate attention. He further stated that he hoped the expenditure would be lessened as the Government realized that the time had arrived when there must be some retrenchment.

MR. J. H. GILLESPIE ENTERS CIVIC FIELD

Business Man and Athletic Leader Will Run as Alderman—To Represent the Younger Element

MR. J. H. GILLESPIE Who has announced his candidacy for the City Council

Yet another business man of prominence has entered the aldermanic race in the person of Mr. J. H. Gillespie, who yesterday announced that he, too, had yielded to the pressure of his friends and would allow his name to go before the electors.

Mr. Gillespie, who is a native son of Victoria, is well known in both the business and the sporting world. He is a member of the firm of Gillespie, Hart & Todd, having started the business by himself some fourteen years ago. He was soon joined by Mr. Hart, and later by Mr. Todd. The firm is recognized both here and in Vancouver as being a sound and conservative institution.

Mr. Gillespie has been active in sports since he left school, and he is today president of both the Rugby Football Union and the Cricket Association. He is a member of the Amalgamated Veterans Society, the Army and Navy Veterans Association, and the Native Sons of B. C. Post No. 1.

Mr. Gillespie stated yesterday that he felt the younger business men of the city should take a more active part in civic affairs, and for this reason he was willing to stand for office. While he felt that the present council had done its best, he believed that there might be room for new blood. The fault lay with the people of Victoria, he claimed, for they elected their aldermen and then forgot about them for a year, with the exception of some who always went about criticizing without first informing themselves on the questions at issue. Being a substantial taxpayer, Mr. Gillespie felt a growing uneasiness as to the position of the land owner, which he hoped to dispel by a closer study of the city's financial position. Mr. Gillespie hoped that there would be a record turnout of voters on December 14, and that the council chosen would be actively supported during its term of office. The citizens should assist the aldermen, he said, with sensible and constructive criticism.

PROTEST INCREASE IN AUTOMOBILE TAX

Amputation Club Claims That This Would Be Indirect Tax on the Pensions of Members

At the regular meeting of the Amputation Club held last evening the question of an increase of fifty per cent in the automobile tax was brought up, and it was pointed out that this increase would create a hardship for amputation cases suffering from the loss of a leg or legs, and who owned cars. Amputation cases fortunate enough to own cars would not be able to do so, it was contended, except for the fact that they were in receipt of a pension for their disability, and this motor car tax increase was really, therefore, an indirect tax on such men's pensions. This was contrary to the Government's agreement with the returned men, and the meeting was of opinion

POLITICAL PARTIES

The introduction of the Farmers political party into Federal politics is one of the chief reasons why there were no elections by acclamation in Tuesday's nominations for the Federal House of Commons. In 234 out of the 235 seats there will be contests, and in a very considerable number of these three-cornered ones. Although all women, eligible by citizenship and age and who have registered now have the vote, there are only five women candidates, while the Labor representation in the field is very disappointing from the standpoint of that party. Labor had hoped to have candidates everywhere it was considered a chance existed for their election, but the party's councils have been divided, and now there is no solidarity in their ranks, the nomination, such as Socialist, Independent-Labor, Farmer-Labor, Progressive-Labor, Federated Labor, etc., marking the differences of the opinion which exist. Of the major parties, the Government has 211 candidates, the Liberals 204 and the Farmers 142.

Out of the welter of political views seeking endorsement at the polls, the outstanding issue is the tariff. It is the attitude of the country on that subject which dominates the election. Protection versus no protection will be decided on December 4, and there is only one protectionist party seeking election, namely, that led by Premier Meighen. The Liberals, according to Mr. Mackenzie King, are pledged to do away with the principle of protection and to collect tariffs only for revenue purposes. The Farmers, according to their election manifesto, are aiming at ultimate free trade, the first instalment of which will be the negotiation of a reciprocity treaty with the United States. The Liberals urged such a treaty in 1911, but were defeated on the issue at the polls. At their convention of 1919 they again placed themselves on record as appreciating the object of this agreement, and intimated that whenever a favorable moment should arise they would make a similar arrangement. From this, it may be gathered that the Liberals are at one with the Farmers on the desirability of reciprocity with the United States.

The policies advocated by both the Farmers and the Liberals, if put into effect, would immediately increase imports to this country from the United States. Since we would be importing more, the probability is that Canada would be producing less, and unemployment would increase. The adverse trade balance would become emphasized, and there would be a still further discount of the Canadian dollar as the country became more and more dependent on the United States. We do not think that the people of this Dominion want to patronize foreign workers at the expense of citizens of this country, and it is of vital importance to internal development to encourage a policy which will lead to the exploitation of our own resources by ourselves. Radical reductions in the tariff would be a vital blow at the industrial life of Canada. Countries with greater developed wealth than this Dominion are finding it in their best interests to raise their tariffs against foreign manufactures, and everywhere the economic tendency is towards protection.

At a time when the country is being asked to try the experiment of new political cults it has to choose between experience and theoretical formulas. The Liberal Party, to quote Dr. Michael Clarke, one of the most prominent of Liberals, asks the people of Canada to sign a blank cheque in its favor. The Farmers seek to fasten free trade on the country. Mr. Meighen and his supporters stand for Canada's resources being developed for the people of Canada by affording their development that reasonable protection which will enable home products to compete successfully with those of foreign lands. As between the Government Party and its multifarious opponents, the choice is specific, and the issue is the methods which will foster the industrial prosperity of the country.

LIQUOR CONTROL FIGURES

The Province, during the first three and a half months of the operation of liquor control, has made a net profit of $462,606, this figure including an amount of $121,000 accruing through the sale of permits. Figures have been published dealing with the cost of operation of the new legislation, and these show a total of $154,375 for warehouse and vendors and $14,337 for head office expenses. In addition, or so it is claimed, for no explanation is made to the contrary, there are secret service costs totalling $10,593, maintenance of prisoners, $1,641, and a refund of licences in Vancouver, $34,328. Head office administrative salaries amounted to $23,222, and travelling expenses to $7,016. When the Board started its business, or before and since starting. It appears to have secured advances from the Provincial Treasury totalling $1,438,650, an amount on which it is paying interest of between six and seven per cent. The public are without knowledge of how this loan is to be repaid, but this, presumably, is a matter which will be arranged for by the creation of a sinking fund drawn from the net profits, which will proportionately reduce the share which the municipalities expect to receive from these.

The figures published deal with the costs of operation during a period of three and a half months. If these costs, without considering the amount paid as a refund on licence fees to the city of Vancouver, can be taken as a basis for estimating the yearly cost of operation, then the annual charge will be in the neighborhood of $160,000 to $180,000. The annual net profit is expected to be $2,500,000, but will probably be nearer $3,000,000, so that the gross profits will run in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. For four and a half months of the operation of the act the sales realized $2,964,514, or that was the amount spent in liquor stores. A careful scrutiny of the figures and an estimate of what annual operation costs will be, show that the Liquor Control Board is now making a net profit of approximately 25 per cent.

We have pointed out, as clearly as we know how, and on several occasions, that a factor which will operate against the popularity of the Liquor Act is the charging of profiteering prices for the commodities which are sold. We do not think that the Legislature ever intended that the Liquor Control Board should be permitted to charge prices which represent net profit at the rate of 25 per cent. We admit that the Board has been engaged in an experimental task. It was deemed advisable to impose heavy prices during the outset of the operation of the new legislation, but a steady trade has now been established and the time has arrived when there should be a downward revision of prices. What is more, there should be a revision of the policy governing the brands of liquors kept in stock. There are in some cases notoriously inferior, although charged for at profiteering prices, and while the Liquor Board may never have meant to follow a policy which does not give the public what they want, it is apparent that through some system, and probably through ignorance affecting the liquor trade, the brands carried leave much to be desired. In the interests of the permanence of liquor control, the time has arrived for a downward revision of prices and for the introduction of a policy which will secure the best brands. There are complaints on every hand about the quality of the liquors being sold, and it is the duty of the Legislature, which endeavored to frame an act to interpret the will of the people, to authorize the Liquor Board to remedy those errors which are militating against the smooth operation of the law.

THE TARIFF DEFENCE

The letter written by Mr. Peter Wright, the well-known British Labor leader, to Premier Meighen, is a human document, and points emphatically to what will be the undoubted consequence in this country if a policy of lower tariffs or free trade is adopted. There are some who will resent any statement at all on the subject from a British Labor leader, but they are those who are not susceptible to advice where their own concerns are involved, although they are willing enough to offer it gratuitously whenever such subjects as the Irish question or a strike in the Old Country is involved. To the great mass of the people, and especially to those whose fortunes are bound up in the industrial future of the country, the viewpoint of Mr. Wright will be of particular value. He is a keen observer, a staunch friend of this country, and he has had economic experience that places him in a valued position to venture his opinions on matters which affect the industrial destiny of any part of the Empire. In writing to Premier Meighen he says:

I am convinced in my own mind that the policy for which you stand is the only practical solution at the moment to tide Canada through this crisis. Otherwise Canada will become a mere adjunct to the purpose of dumping the surplus commodities of the United States, which means poverty and starvation for the industrial classes, and a bitter disappointment for you in Canada will have to pay an awful price. At this moment in Canada, it is absolutely imperative to combine the forces of common sense and honesty, and rally as a united force against the warring elements that will lead into chaos (politically) and land you on a lee shore amongst the wreckage of democratic fallacies that will not bear the test of time. If the democracy is to survive and stand the test of time it must be based on science as well as sentiment. Anyway, it is all in the lap of the gods at the moment, and I pray that your health will stand the terrible ordeal of this strenuous contest of a general election, and I feel persuaded that your honesty and intense sense of responsibility that you have displayed so far will be recognized by the Canadian people, and eventually place you in the position of a great leader to make Canada take her place amongst the great nations of the world and our Empire, and become eventually the happiest place on your great continent. This is my wish and the sincere desire of one who loves Canada.

AUSTRALIAN CONSTITUTION PLAN

LONDON, Nov. 24.—A Reuters cable from Melbourne says the state premiers are generally opposed to the Licensing Bill, providing for the summing up of an Australian convention for the revision of the constitution on the ground that the bill is too vague. They further consider the delegates should be elected by the people.

CLOVERDALE PUPIL IS PRESENTED WITH MEDAL

Trophy Bestowed by Governor-General Formally Handed to Arthur Stoner on Wednesday

Presentation of the Governor-General's Medal to Arthur Stoner, late pupil of Cloverdale School, was made on Wednesday afternoon by Inspector A. C. Stewart, of the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Holloway, chairman of the Spanish School Board, acted as chairman. After the singing of "Land of My Birth" by forty children led by Miss Leadenham, accompanied by Miss Parfitt, Chairman Holloway called on Inspector A. C. Stewart to make the presentation. Mr. Stewart stated that owing to seasonal duties, Hon. J. T. McLean was unable to be present. He said that the Province was divided into ten districts, and a medal was struck for each district. In this district, which includes Greater Victoria, Arthur Stoner ranked first. He not only ranked first, but came second in the whole of the Province. The medal was then presented amid cheers and hand-clapping by the pupils. Mr. Stewart then gave a very interesting talk to the pupils, stating that it was through hard work by the pupils and teachers that medals were won. Mr. Holloway congratulated Arthur Stoner on winning the medal, stating it was a great credit to his school, to the district of Spanish and to the principal and staff. Trustee Oldfield then spoke of the good work of the schools of Spanish winning the medal.

Miss Alward, principal, in her talk, stated that it was Master Stoner's good work that was responsible for the medal coming to Cloverdale School. Mr. W. C. Jeune, president of Cloverdale Parent Teachers' Association, after congratulating the pupil on his attainment, told the children that they and the school staff would have the co-operation of the Parent Teachers' Association of Cloverdale in anything that would be beneficial to them. Trustee Oldfield then spoke of the good work of the schools of Spanish winning the medal. After the singing of "O Canada," and thanks tendered to Mr. Stewart and Trustee Holloway, Oldfield and Jeune, the meeting closed. Mr. Kipling's Opinion PARIS, Nov. 24.—Rudyard Kipling, when asked by The Elair for his opinion of the Washington conference, replied that speeches were of no avail. There must be acts guaranteeing security against the German danger. He declared it was to the interest of Great Britain and France to remain closely united to face Germany, their common enemy.

PREMIER STILL HOPES TO VISIT WASHINGTON

LONDON, Nov. 24.—It is understood that Mr. Lloyd George still hopes to be able to visit Washington for the armament conference. There is a possibility that he may go to the United States before Christmas, it was said today.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—A letter received yesterday by Albert Gillyer, president of the Canadian Club of New York from E. L. Stevenson, secretary to Mr. Lloyd George, expresses the regret of the British Premier that he will be unable to address the club at its annual dinner.

In the event of his being able to come to the United States, the message says, "he fears that the time at his disposal will be very short and will have to be devoted entirely to the work of the armament conference."

Information concerning alleged arrangements between the Provincial Liquor Control Board and the Rainier Brewing Company, of Kamloops, is being sought in the Legislature by Mr. H. H. Pooley, Conservative member for Esquimalt, who has put a series of questions to Attorney-General Farrer.

EXPECT SESSION'S END ON WEDNESDAY

Arrangement Reached Whereby Work of Legislators Will End Next Week—Beer Clause Looked For

With an arrangement arrived at that the Legislature shall prorogue next Wednesday afternoon or evening, an arrangement reached yesterday between the Government and opposition, there is little disposition shown by the opposition members to obstruct business, and with the estimates of expenditure now under way in the House progress towards getting to the end of the session is showing more speed.

Government forces are anxious to get out into the various ridings to take part in the Federal campaign which is now in full swing and will be decided on December 8 next, and Conservative opposition members as well as Independents are imbued with the same desire.

Once the estimates are through there will be little to hold the House. With the introduction of amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act, amendments which will virtually cover those introduced in the House by Mr. Tom Uphill, Labor member for Fernie, which yesterday were held up by the Premier on the point of order that such could not be introduced by a private member, and a beer clause which will undoubtedly be brought down this week along the lines of that introduced in the House last session, the chief business before the House will have been tabled.

The beer clause will be brought in when some minor amendments to the Liquor Act will be tabled by the Attorney-General. Who will introduce the clause is, so far, a mystery, but report has it that Mr. Ian MacKenzie will sponsor it as he did last year.

WANTS BEER FACTS

Esquimalt's Member Curious Concerning Operations of the Provincial Liquor Control Board

Information concerning alleged arrangements between the Provincial Liquor Control Board and the Rainier Brewing Company, of Kamloops, is being sought in the Legislature by Mr. H. H. Pooley, Conservative member for Esquimalt, who has put a series of questions to Attorney-General Farrer.

He asks if any contract has been made by the Board with the Rainier Brewing Company for the supply of beer; if so, particulars of the contract, by whom signed, and by what authority; how many cars of beer have been delivered under the contract and at what points; whether any of the beer was unsaleable owing to having gone bad or cloudy, and if so, what arrangements were made as to repayment to the Board for such bad beer, if any.

Mr. Pooley also wants facts concerning the rental paid for the John Street Street Liquor store in this city, and the Filter & Laker warehouse, and concerning one J. J. Donnelly, liquor vendor at Quesnel.

ORGANIZE FOR CHRISTMAS FUND

Rotarians Will Stage Annual Entertainment for Poor Children—Drive Starts December 1

The Rotary Club's annual drive for funds to bring Christmas cheer into the homes of Victoria's poor children will commence December 1. It was announced at the club's luncheon yesterday by Chairman Laurie Edwards, of the Christmas free committee.

Last year the club raised more than $5,000, staged a big Christmas tree entertainment at the Royal Victoria Theatre, and provided gifts of clothing and other goods to hundreds of little folk who otherwise might have experienced little happiness.

The club's plans this year are similar to those of last year, and, with generous response assured from the public, it is hoped to raise a larger fund than ever before.

SAANICH REFUSES TO BACK UP CITY

Council Receives and Files Victoria's Request for Endorsement of Demand for Justice

The request of the city of Victoria for endorsement of its demands for justice in regard to municipalities or the resignation of the Government was received and filed by the Saanich Council last night after little comment.

Councillor Kingwell stated that while he was opposed to the present Government, he thought the Saanich Council should keep out of politics. Councillor Horner declared that the City Council had acted like a naughty child.

Reeve Watson stated that as the Government had not kept its promise, the executive of the Union of B. C. Municipalities was justified in breaking off relations with it.

Councillor Ormond thought the city was justified in its request for justice or the Government's resignation.

The resolution to receive and file passed without a dissenting voice.

FOREIGN SECRETARY SPEAKS WARNINGLY TO FRENCH NATION

tion with the United States. "Again the vision of peace appeared," he said, "but it did not prevent war." He did not suppose "our awards were going to be made plowshares" and he did not suppose the "old Adam" was exalted from man. "It was not by resolutions of a conference, but by the resolution of the people that a change would occur," he said.

Among the points of Lord Curzon's address was the statement that looking calmly ahead, he believed a decade would pass from the signing of the armistice before normal conditions of life as they were in the old days, would be resumed.

International Co-operation

Speaking of the necessity of international co-operation for the re-establishment of peace, he said:

"Look at what has happened at Washington. Until the meeting of the conference, Japan was building ships and the United States was building ships. Why could they not cut their programme in half? Because each one was afraid of the competition of the other; each was afraid of being confronted with a programme bigger than its own. But they met at Washington around a table. Someone gave the lead, another great power followed, and in a moment you had an advance by common consultation which might have taken years to achieve if it had been left to the initiative of any individual power acting by itself. I should like to apply this golden rule method all around."

After saying the Great powers would assist Germany, provided she showed sincerity, Lord Curzon added: "So long as Great Britain, France and Italy hold together, I am hopeful of the result."

Greeks and Turks

The speaker said, in reference to clashes between the Greeks and Turkish Nationalists, that it was very important that there should be no victory for either side, and that there should be peace.

That, he said, would be in the interests of both parties, and it was important to this country because, although "we fought against the Turks, although they were guilty of many inhuman acts, and although we beat them in war, we have no permanent quarrel with the Mohammedan races. We are the greatest Mohammedan power in the world. If we only killed the suspicious between Greece and Turkey we might persuade them that there is room for both in the Near East. Our hopes will materialize only we go into this affair with a single policy, a single aim, and a single plan."

CHANGE IN POLICE COMMISSION DELAYED

Municipal Committee of House Hears Protest From Delegation of Cities Against Suggested Amendment

The municipal committee of the Provincial Legislature yesterday laid over to another year the proposal to abolish the popularly elected police commissions in British Columbia.

A delegation waited on the members of the committee and protested strongly against making any change from the present system of elected commissions. With the delegation was Rev. Robert Wilkinson, Major J. J. Johnston, of New Westminster, and Alderman J. G. McRae, of Vancouver. It was explained to the delegation that the proposed change had been intended as a safeguard to the taxes. There had been considerable expenditure by school boards and police commissions in British Columbia during the last few years, and these commissions had no responsibility for raising the money which they spent.

Rev. William Stevenson said that in 1911 the people of Victoria voted by 2,278 to 800 to do away with the appointed police commission in the city, and while the ordinance had been made, the present system was not as bad as when the commissioners were appointed by an irresponsible body. They are trying to improve things in the city and reconstruct our social life along better lines," he said.

Mrs. Spofford endorsed what Rev. Mr. Stevenson had said, and declared that she could tell of startling conditions in this city under the old system.

Canon Hinchcliffe, a member of the municipal commission, pointed out that the amendment was an honest endeavor to find out some way of inducing a better class of men to take charge of the police department. He was of the opinion that no better class of men could be thought of than the elected men who sit on the City Council.

Mayor Johnston, of New Westminster, said that the change as proposed was a retrograde step, as conditions under the old system had always been deplorable. Alderman McRae, of Vancouver, endorsed this view, and declared that the elective system was mainly an improvement over the old one.

OUTER DOCKS WILL HAVE WAITING-ROOM

Convenience for Waiting Passengers to Be Installed at Rithet Piers—Will Fill Great Want

Filling a long-felt want, Rithet Consolidated, owners of the Outer Wharf piers, will shortly construct a waiting-room at the docks for the convenience of the public. Plans have not matured very far as yet, but it is understood that the work will be undertaken soon and will be carried to completion before the winter months have advanced much further. The room will be nearly the berth used by the Canadian Pacific liners and the biggest of the other vessels docking here, and located as advantageously as possible for waiting passengers.

The installation of this waiting-room at the docks, not at present very well fitted in that respect, will be thoroughly appreciated by the public. Vessels calling at this port are in fact notorious for delays, whose arrival cannot be foretold with any degree of certainty until they actually appear in sight. Even then at times a hitch occurs, as happened with the Empress of Russia on her last sailing when she waited off the breakwater from early evening until nearly midnight for the Silver State to vacate her berth.

OBITUARY NOTICES

TURNER.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Phoebe Turner will take place this afternoon from the R. C. Funeral Chapel at 2:30, proceeding to St. Barnabas Church, where service will be conducted fifteen minutes later by Rev. N. E. Smith. Interment will be made at Moss Bay Cemetery.

WHIR.—The funeral of the late Andrew Whir took place yesterday afternoon from the R. C. Funeral Chapel, where service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Campbell. There was a large attendance of friends and the casket was covered with many beautiful floral tributes. Two hymns were rendered: "Rock of Ages" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The remains were conveyed to the cemetery in a gun carriage and were draped with the Union Jack. A drink party in charge of three volleys over the grave and at the conclusion of the service Bugler Smith sounded "Last Post." The pallbearers were C. W. Farquhar, J. Roe, C. Wood, J. Eldred, C. Hime and F. Barber.

WILSON.—The death occurred Wednesday evening at the residence of his wife, Mrs. E. Hargreaves, 1449 Vining street, of Alexander Wilson, aged 75 years and 10 months. The late Mr. Wilson had resided in Victoria for the past eleven years, and formerly was a resident of Salt Spring Island. He was a native of Scotland, and is survived by two sons and four daughters. Mr. Wilson was a member of Victoria Columbia Lodge, No. 1, A. F. & A. M., and his many friends will regret to hear of his demise. Funeral will take place Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Thompson Funeral Home. Rev. Dr. Campbell will officiate.

CHATHAM, Ont., Nov. 24.—Two boys 14 and 15 years old, admitted in the county police court yesterday that they had imbibed too much liquor and were guilty of an infraction against the Ontario Temperance Act. Other boys are also implicated. The police are making inquiries.

SPLendid REPORT GIVEN AT MEETING

Miss Cooke, Educational Secretary, Addressed Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., Yesterday Afternoon

Vastly encouraging to the Order was the report read yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., by the Educational Secretary, Miss A. B. Cooke, who gave a resume of the work during the past year, when it was decided to undertake the awarding of secondary education bursaries. The attention of primary chapters was drawn to the fact that subscriptions for magazines for school should now be renewed. "I don't think," said Miss Cooke, "any work we have yet done has appealed to, or been such splendid help, both to teachers and pupils, as this presentation of English periodicals to schools." On Armistice Day eight schools were presented with pictures of the "Burial of the Unknown Warrior" and two with I.O.D.E. libraries. It was urged by the speaker that before next Armistice Day every school in the city should be supplied with a similar picture.

In conclusion of her report, Miss Cooke enumerated the different donations made by primary chapters to the school of their adoption, which resulted in the following report: Fifteen schools "adopted," 55 pictures presented, and a year's subscription to eight British periodicals, and four I.O.D.E. libraries presented. Placing the average value of the framed pictures at $12, the monetary value of these gifts amount to: Pictures, $1,080; libraries, $40, and periodicals, $95, making a total of $1,185. Definite promises of monthly grants of money have been received by the Educational Secretary from the following chapters: Florence, Nightingale, Lady Douglas, Margaret R. Robertson, Camosun, Esquimalt, Gonzales, and Navy League, but other chapters must join in the work to facilitate the continuance of the bursaries.

A request was received from Canadian veterans of the great war, now living in Tacoma, for a Union Jack. These ex-soldiers are forming a club, and the flag which they now possess, a relic of Zeebrugge, is of a very small size, and they are anxious to possess a large standard for ceremonies. The Order will forward a Union Jack to the men.

Mrs. Mortimer Appleby reported on the Soldiers' Graves Committee, and letters from England and this city were received advising the members for the splendid work they have undertaken in this connection.

Mrs. Seabrook Young reported on the Maternity Bursary Committee, and made a strong appeal to the members to complete the sewing of articles needed for the layettes.

Mrs. Ivel, as convener of the Christmas Relief Fund, will arrange a day on which the committee shall meet to complete plans for the distribution and preparation of the hampers. It was decided that the residue from last year's Christmas tree subscription should be devoted to the fund being used this year.

A vote of appreciation and congratulation was passed to the Annular Veterans' Association of Victoria and the Order's assurance of their assistance in any patriotic endeavor they may undertake.

A vote of sympathy was passed to Mrs. Chrow, who is at present in ill health.

BRITISH STEEL INTERESTS COMING

Minister of Lands Makes Optimistic Announcement Regarding Industrial Development in Province

Hon. T. D. Pattullo made the announcement yesterday that he had received word this week that a representative of some British interests of thorough reliability, had left London, and was en route to Victoria to submit proposals for the establishment of a steel and iron industry in the Province. He had received a request from authorities in London asking for the fullest detailed information regarding the Stewart Lake lands, such as soil conditions, and the cost of clearing.

The Minister of Lands also announced that word had been received that some British interests were now awaiting the arrival of certain data before proceeding with development plans in connection with power projects at Campbell River. Referring to the financial condition of the Province, Hon. Mr. Pattullo said that British Columbia had passed the peak of necessary borrowing and the money which has been put into productive enterprises is already beginning to come back. He deprecated so much pessimism, and said that British Columbia with its great area of undeveloped minerals, fisheries, agricultural lands, timber, and water power resources, has little to worry about in the future.

"We are going to become a great manufacturing province, and it is plain to see that every year conditions favor us in this direction. British Columbia is at this moment in time for great development which few people realize. The Province has no cause to be afraid."

Killed by Runaway Truck

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Ellen McRoberts, 32, was instantly killed yesterday by a motor truck. The truck had been left standing on McFarland Avenue, and started down on its own accord, striking the woman and dragging her some distance.

German Action Approved

MAYENCE, Nov. 24.—The Inter-Allied High Commission has approved the action of the German Finance Ministry in raising the customs duty paid in paper marks to 3,500 per cent of their value in gold marks. The new rate went into effect today.

EDDIE HEARNE WINS BIG MOTOR RACE

Wet Track at Los Angeles Was No Bar to Terrific Speed—
Harry Milton Wins Point Championship

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—Eddie Hearne, of Los Angeles, won the 250-mile automobile race here today and Thomas Milton, second, won the national championship of seasonal points.

Frank Elliott took third place. Roscoe Barlow, contending against Milton for the championship, was forced out of the race in the 150th lap. Ten intrepid racers drove at a speed for two hours of nearly 110 miles an hour despite the danger of skidding on a wet track with intermittent showers during the two hours.

Jimmy Murphy finished fourth, and Harry Hartz took fifth place. Hearne's winning time was 2 hours, 15 minutes, and 40 seconds for the 250 miles. No accidents marred the race despite the fact that the track was slippery with rain. Hearne averaged 109.7 miles an hour.

JUNIORS ORGANIZE

Ice Hockey Organization Effected—
Entries Must Be In Within Week

The organization was effected last night of the Victoria Junior Ice Hockey Association which will affiliate with the senior body.

Mr. Percy Watson, president of the provincial organization, and Mr. Dan O'Sullivan, president of the local senior association, were present at the meeting, and gave their advice and assistance in effecting the organization. An executive committee was formed of the following: L. D. Ryan, chairman; H. C. Moody, secretary, and Messrs. D. Spence, C. Stocker and W. E. Cook.

It was decided to call for applications for entry to be made within a week, all clubs sending in applications to send with them the names and ages of their players. The age limit is twenty.

SOCCER LINE-UPS

Wilson United are scheduled to meet the Sons of England tomorrow at Central Park. A very close game is anticipated as the last encounter of these teams ended in a draw. Wilson's team will be represented by Dunn, Moulton, Smillie, Young, Gardier, Dowell, Bray, Jones, Dowell, Bryant, McKenise and Lusk.

The following players are asked to be at Central Park tomorrow at 2:15 p.m. to represent the Saanich Thistles: Hogan, Main, Price, Shanks, Crowe, McCullum, Alexander, McGregor, Essler, Anderson, Elving, Consonant and Cracknell.

MULDOON IS RELYING ON JUST NINE MEN

But They Are of a Type That Is Sufficient to Meet All Emergencies, Says Seattle's
Hockey Manager

The Seattle Hockey Club is going to carry only nine men this season, and eight of the players are now under contract, Jim Riley being the only 1921 regular who has not attached his name to the papers.

"Nine men of the type we have signed are sufficient for any hockey club," declares Manager Muldoon. "We have never been so well fortified as we are right now. We have had ten men at times, to be sure, but never two such substitutes as Briden and Fraser are going to be this year. I don't mind saying that one or both of them may force one of the present regulars to step aside for him."

It All Depends

The Seattle manager's words are mighty true providing the two young players live up to their reputations. Briden, of course, is the more experienced, and liable to prove the more valuable. But Fraser, is younger, is a wonderful skater, and may develop into the more valuable of the two before the season is over.

The versatility of Briden and Jim Riley is the foundation for Muldoon's decision to carry but nine men. Briden can play any place, and so can Riley. In fact, the placing of Riley in the regular line-up is likely to be one of the manager's biggest problems this year.

Muldoon has always felt that Berrie Morris was at his best in centre ice, from which position he led the league in scoring in 1917 and was close the next year. He has always felt that the combination play of the Mets dropped off when Morris went to right wing, but he was shy a dependable right-hand shot, and had to make the best of it.

May Change Formation

With Briden, a big, powerful fellow who shoots them from the right side, available this year, the Seattle forward line is liable to be shaken up. Jim Riley, wonderful natural player that he is, doesn't exactly fit into the team play made famous by Morris, Foyton and Walker, and if Briden does drop in without too much of an upheaval, it wouldn't be at all surprising if Riley was forced to watch that trio perform on the forward line.

Riley, however, must be in the game most of the time. His 177 pounds of weight and his continual boring in can't be kept out of there. He may drop into a defence position, especially if he gets over his lunging habits and learns to work the opposition into the corners, as Rickey, Rowe and Walker do.

Cocrochia has not been offered to Muzz Murray and Charlie Tobin, of last year's team. Tobin will probably land as the playing manager of the Calgary club, providing he cares to leave his home in Portland; while Murray, who is still in Bellingham, where he played baseball last summer, is probably free to sign where he pleases.

League—Bert Waude Hurt

Two Gyro hockey teams headed by Roland Christy and Alex. Straith, played their second game of the season on Wednesday night. After an hour of the most brilliant hockey Christy's team emerged victorious on the long end of a 4 to 6 score. The game was replete with thrills and Mincou Smith's end-to-end rushes brought tumultuous applause from the spectators. On one occasion Mincou Smith completely outgassed the opposing team, went through single-handed and scored the prettiest goal of the game.

ROY CLAIMS LOAN IS PERSONAL MATTER

Report From New York Says
D.F.A. Official Will Be Sued
for Recovery of Two Thousand Dollars

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—The Telegram soccer editor today says:

"A new and very disturbing light has been thrown on the Dominion Football Association's financial situation by a report from New York to the effect that Thomas Bagnall is prepared to sue Secretary David Roy to recover $2,000 loaned him while the Scottish players were in the United States. Mr. Bagnall has given Secretary Roy two weeks' grace."

"According to the story, Roy received two cheques for $1,000 each from T. W. Cahill which covered the expenses put up by several American clubs. The bank would not cash the cheques until they had been certified and as the players were due to sail next day, Bagnall exchanged the cheques for one on his own bank. Roy is then stated to have informed Bagnall that drafts from Canada had not arrived and that he was short the necessary cash to settle up the tour before the visitors left. Bagnall is reported to have advanced Roy $2,000 until the funds arrived. After the Scottish players had sailed, President Dan Macneil and Secretary Roy remained over in New York a day or two, but returned to Canada without, as Mr. Bagnall stated, refunding him the $2,000 loaned. The cheque from Cahill, he cashed all right."

"Mr. Bagnall, the story runs, has made repeated applications to Roy for a return of the money, and unless a settlement is made within two weeks, Bagnall will raise proceedings in the Dominion courts. Repeated assurances from Roy that the money would be paid, he declares, have not materialized."

"On the same subject, a message from President Macneil states that Roy did not receive the $2,000 from Bagnall with the intention of paying it back as soon as he could secure money from Canada. Roy had figured that the United States games would pay for themselves and had not taken enough money with him and was forced to borrow."

Mr. Roy Explains
WINNIPEG, Nov. 23.—Secretary David Roy, of the Dominion Football Association, admitted the indebtedness of President Dan Macneil and himself to Thomas Bagnall, of New York, to the extent of $2,000, when interviewed here tonight, but declared it was a personal obligation which in no way involved the United States Football Association or T. A. Cahill, the secretary.

Mr. Roy stated he had forwarded $150 to Mr. Bagnall as a guarantee of good faith, but that the money had been returned owing to the latter being indisposed. He expected to hear from Mr. Bagnall in the morning. No note was made, he stated, as legal proceedings were out of the question. He denied having received "repeated applications for a return of the money," stating that the guarantee of good faith was all that Mr. Bagnall required until the financial statement of the Scottish football tour was ready.

The financial statement will be issued at the beginning of next week, he said.

It is reported that the Elks, Eagles, Victoria West, Colonial Printers, Kiwanis and Gyro organizations will enter teams in the new bowling division.

NANAIMO SPORT NOTES

NANAIMO, Nov. 24.—The local High School has made arrangements to play the Chemainus intermediate basketball team here tomorrow evening and as a preliminary to what they expect to be a very fast game, the girls of the local school will try to lead the way to victory against the Chemainus girls.

The Ladysmith-Cumberland soccer game scheduled for Sunday next at Ladysmith has been cancelled, as has also the proposed meeting of the Up-Island Football Association, which was to have been held on Saturday evening next.

Weather permitting, the postponed game of Oct. 30th between South Wellington and Nanaimo City will be played here.

With a view to giving the citizens an opportunity to share in the benefits and profits to be obtained from the development of an up-to-date golf links here, the Nanaimo Golf Club, Ltd., is arranging to have a committee call on interested business men to explain the proposals and receive subscriptions. The residential parts of the city are being covered by circular letters explaining the project, and all classes of people should participate in the movement, which will be an advancement to the city as a whole.

Horsemen to Meet
A special committee meeting of the British Columbia Thoroughbred Association will be held on Sunday, November 27, at the home of the secretary, 214 Ontario Street, at 7 o'clock, for important business.

CLAIMS SOCCER HAS CHANGED CHARACTER

Game Itself Considered Good
as Ever, But the Multitude of Leagues Is Proving a Detriment

In an editorial article concerning Association (soccer) football, The London Field says:

"The actual game is as good as it ever was, affording healthy excitement and splendid exercise, bringing out the best points in a player, and providing unusual opportunities for the exercise of skill and ingenuity. Unfortunately, in the multitude of leagues which have become the bane of the game, many of these advantages have been lost because the game has changed its character. Writing The Sporting Chronicle, Mr. J. A. H. Catton, who has had a most intimate knowledge of league football ever since its infancy, says: 'There are hundreds of leagues, alliances, combinations and federations sanctioned by the Football Association and kindred county bodies in affiliation with them. Their creation is continuous. A great number have been formed since the Armistice. Whenever and wherever a few enthusiasts get together they deem it expedient to start a league. Amateur clubs and professional clubs are alike. Great Eastern League, Kent League, Surrey League, Dockyard League, Liverpool City League, Mersey League, Seamen's Sports Club League, Tramways League, Railway League, London Postal League, Fleet School League, and scores of others unknown outside their own locality or circle are in existence. The league principle has been universally adopted. The football world is a league and cup mad.'"

Points Too Important
Now there is nothing in the league principle to which anybody could object, but experience has unfortunately shown that it does not work. In the long run it is invariably found that points become of so much importance that the players are obliged to play for points and not for the game itself. Mr. Catton says only too truly: 'The result is greater than the game, points are more valued than the game itself, and in the hurry-burry of competition in the struggle for place and all that appertains thereto, the aim of every player is to show the beauty of football, not to exploit its possibilities, but to think out and try new methods of attack and defence, and not to make any experiment, but to collar the points by any means possible. Players brought from anywhere, and often bought at fabulous prices—just as a gentleman with means might purchase a racehorse or greyhound. The player thinks in points and is not inclined to take any risks which will endanger those good conduct marks. What is still more important is that the directors, managers, and secretaries of clubs are compelled to think in points, too. The position and prestige of the club are translatable into pounds and shillings.'"

Amateurs and Pros.
If these statements, which describe facts, are not sufficient to prove that at the moment the Association game is in a perilous state, we may turn to a statement made at the recent Congress by the Rev. K. R. G. Hunt, one of the very few English amateurs who played in international matches in recent years. He said that in membership with the Football Association there are 750,000 professional players and 8,000 professionals, a statement which is probably correct where near the mark. Taking Mr. Hunt's figures, it is the simple fact that though the amateurs outnumber the professionals by about a hundred to one, not a single amateur is to be found in the eleven which the other day played against Ireland. It is not possible for a game to be in a healthy state in which such a condition prevails.

The game has drifted until it is overrun with officials, and the referee, so far from being a mere official, as is an umpire at cricket, has become by the most important, not to say the most imposing, figure on the field.

He spoils multitudes of matches by his perpetual blowing of the whistle, and the pity of it is that he is at his very worst in small-boy matches. The other day in a league match near London between two preparatory schools, the boys were as fair in their methods as if they had been Corinthians, and they did not even get offside. But the whistle was maddening. The referee in order that he might not miss any conceivable opportunity of blowing his whistle held it always in his mouth. He must blow to signify that the ball was out—and as the ground was exceedingly narrow it was out constantly—that it had been thrown in, that it had gone behind, that there was a corner, that the corner kick might now be taken, that the kick had been taken. This sort of thing is going on all over the country, and although it is a minor evil it is an evil lying at the very root of a game which ought to be one of the best in the world for boys, but as the schools are recognizing all over the country, is gradually becoming the worst.

VANCOUVER BOARD WORKS FOR DRYDOCK

VANCOUVER, Nov. 24.—Claiming that port development and industrial expansion is being retarded by "delay and uncertainty" in the construction of the proposed drydock in Vancouver, the council of the board of trade of Vancouver, have sent a telegram to Ottawa asking that the work be proceeded with at once.

The council also decided to take up with the Department of Marine and Fisheries the question of the widening of the entrance to Vancouver harbor. The council claims that the Federal Government has failed to follow up its announcement of a few months ago that an arrangement had been made with local shipyards to proceed with the construction of the drydock. The Department of Marine and Fisheries is also said to have notified the Vancouver Board of Trade that the harbor would be dredged to afford greater protection to big liners plying into this port.

PRINCESS PATS LOSE LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

Departmental Corps Go to Top
in Garrison Soccer League With Victory of Two Goals
to Nil in Yesterday's Game

The fast-stepping Princess Pats, who have been leading all the soccer leagues, met their first defeat yesterday at Work Point at the hands of the hasty departmental eleven by 2 to 0. The game was minus the usual thrills, as weather conditions have been somewhat disagreeable for the last few days, but nevertheless some brilliant play was pulled off at intervals. The play was fairly even in the first half, with the Departmentals having a slight edge on their opponents.

After half time both teams set a faster pace, and some brilliant play was seen. Wait on a pass in front of the Pats' goal broke into the scoring column, giving the goalkeeper no chance whatever to save. Later in the game Watt again scored, this time getting through by himself and beating the goalie with a low drive. Ross, the Pats' goalie, played a good game, having little or no chance to save the goals scored against him, and on various occasions what looked like a sure goal was cast aside in fine style. T. Watt, G. Ward and Grimes at back among the winners, whilst Gibson, Cummings and Ross in goal, were the best men for the losers. The game was handled in a very satisfactory manner by Bill Faulkner.

The league standing up to and including yesterday's game is as follows:

	P. W. L. D. Pt.
Departmental Corps	5 2 1 7
Princess Pats	4 3 1 0 6
Artillery	4 1 3 1 3
Machine Gunners	3 0 3 0 0

TAXING THE RACES

To the Sporting Editor.—In re the 5 per cent tax on all moneys taken in at the pari-mutuel machines at race meetings in British Columbia:

Cap. 43, 19-11, Geo. V., 1920—Amendment to the Criminal Code of Canada expressly prohibits the management of any racetrack from deducting and retaining from the money placed in their trust at the pari-mutuel machines by the public any sum or percentage of money in excess of the following:

Under $20,000 per race, 7 per cent.
In excess of $20,000, but not exceeding $30,000, 6 per cent.
In excess of $30,000, but not exceeding $40,000, 5 per cent.
In excess of $40,000, 4 per cent.

The words deduct and retain must be taken to mean deduct and not retaining. An Act of Parliament must be construed literally, and no court would decide that by deduction of money in excess of the amount specifically allowed under this section, the racing associations would be liable to be considered as having committed a crime, or for charity or any other purpose, is not a violation of the Criminal Code and punishable as a misdemeanor under the Act.

For the Government to tax the racing associations 5 per cent on the total amount which passes through the pari-mutuel machines would, if over $40,000, be an actual loss to the racing association, and on the greatest percentage allowed, 7 per cent, the 3 per cent left to the association on $20,000 would amount to only $1400, less than the actual amount given as a purse, $400. If it is the object of the Minister of Finance to abolish horse racing in this Province, let him say so, and do not try to fool the public with paltries. Racing is only beginning to be re-established as a clean sport.

For the enormous sums spoken of as going through the pari-mutuel machines are analyzed, it will be found by a very simple mathematical calculation that, if in three days' racing of seven races per day, on the first race a sum of $40,000 is played in the machines, at the end of the third day over $500,000 will have been played in the machines, and that of the original capital of $40,000, $10,000 will still be left to continue its journey, so that in three days' racing the total actual amount which will have changed ownership will not amount to more than $10,000 a day. As a matter of fact, in no race run in the past racing season in British Columbia did a sum as high as $40,000 pass through the pari-mutuel on a single race. These figures are given in order to dissipate the public delusion which has been deliberately fostered to exaggerate the amount of money speculated in horse races.

Falls Cited by Premier as Illustration — Mr. Crerar's
Inconsistency

NAPANEE, Ont., Nov. 24.—"The tariff proposals of Mr. Crerar and his party are the chief stock in their political trade," declared Premier Meighen, speaking here today. "In the West," Mr. Meighen continued, "Mr. Crerar and his associates used the farmer tariff policy as a method to win votes."

"The Western farmer will suffer if this policy becomes law," the Premier asserted, "and the cities of the United States will benefit." Discussing the tariff on agricultural implements, Mr. Meighen said it was as low as it could be. "We have come down to the bone on agricultural implements," he declared. "I have just come through from Smith Falls, and the factory manufacturing implements in that city closed today because the duty is so low. Mr. Crerar is wholly inconsistent and hollow when he uses the language he does in regard to protection, and then declares he wants to get rid of it by easy stages only," asserted the Premier.

DEPUTIES SUPPORT BRIAND GOVERNMENT

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The Chamber of Deputies tonight, by a vote of 347 to 180, gave its support to the Government on its financial programme. Discussion of the financial situation began November 2, and closure was reached tonight by a show of hands, preventing further speeches. The precise motion selected by the Government as expressive of its views, and which obtained the vote, requested the Government to exercise vigilance in the strict execution of Germany's engagements, to take every necessary measure abroad for the preservation of the guarantees of France's claims, and not to demand new taxation before maximum results were obtained from existing taxes. It also requested the Government to avoid every measure tending to increase circulation of paper currency.

Cracked Drain Pipe Regarded by Capt. Bissett as Probable Source of Leak—Can Explain Filling of Ship in No Other Way—Defends Sending Out of Lifeboat for Help

That Bathroom Pipe
A drain pipe from the bathroom, in which a fourteen-inch crack developed, was the cause of the disaster, testified in the court. In the teeth of some skepticism from experts in the court, Captain Blisset expressed the opinion that this pipe may have been broken by the inflow of water which waterlogged the floor. Captain Blisset could think of no other source of the mysterious seepage. When the ship was reconciled in drydock at Victoria, this broken pipe was the only one found, except that sustained by the flooding. The investigation of the casualty, one of the most mysterious in the annals of marine history, according to Captain Blisset, was not over. An inquest, was commenced this morning at the court house, Captain Carl R. Blissett, her master, being the first witness. There was a large number of people present, including the officers and some of the crew of the ship. Captain Blisset was the first to testify, which built the vessel; Captain Flinck, marine superintendent for the C.G.M.M. Ltd.; T. Loudon, port engineer for the C.G.M.M. Ltd.; B. C. Gough, chief engineer; and J. W. Mayra, secretary of the operating company; D. McTaggart, counsel, for Captain Blisset, and G. Kintz, representing London.

The assessors associated with Captain Macpherson on the inquiry are Captain A. P. W. Williamson and J. T. Edmonds, superintendent of the North Vancouver ferries.

Chief Engineer W. H. Standford Blissett was the first witness.

new ally and under the direction of questions by Captain Macpherson told the story of the unfortunate voyage as it developed from the time he sailed from Vancouver. Captain Bissell said that he had a certificate of clearance from the customs officer at the wharves for foreign-going steamers and this was filed with the chairman. He had been in command of the Importer since he took her over at St. John's, Nfld., in 1911. He had been previously commanded the somewhat smaller foreign-going vessel Canadian Volunteer and Canadian Warrior for the G.M.M. Ltd. He joined the Importer as chief mate in 1912, and after two years ago he had two voyages in the Importer, one from St. John to the Antipodes and back to Vancouver, and another from Vancouver to the Antipodes. He said that on his last voyage was with a full cargo of lumber, including deckload.

Commercial Shipyards Worry Over Construction Prospects —Half-Finished Ships May Become Liners

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24. — Commercial shipbuilders now engaged on naval construction are gravely concerned as to what the impending naval reductions mean to them, and they are anxious to be hearing the reaction from the quarters of the Navy. The builders who have visited Washington, however, have voiced direct criticism of the conference program of the Navy Department, and they may feel their inquiries here, it was learned today, have to do with the revealing ways and means of keeping their plant alive.

In this connection it is understood some of the builders are said to be considering what they may be able to do in salvaging their ships to be discarded and broken up.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Representatives of fourteen maritime countries were present at the opening yesterday of the International Shipping Conference. Welcoming the delegates, Sir Owen Phillips, president of the Chamber of Shipping, advocated a better international organization of shipping interests, and said the great question was what should be done with the present super-abundance of mercantile shipping, exceeding probable world's requirements for the next few years.

Sailors Gave Trouble on Montreal—Discharged at Naples, Tried to Sack Ship—Routed by Police

ROME, Nov. 24.—A dispatch to The Tempo of Naples today reports a mutiny among the crew of the steamer Montreal (from Montreal), November 4, bound for Naples, which recently arrived at Naples. The crew, says the dispatch, was discharged upon reaching port, and some of the sailors, after disembarking, tried to sack the vessel, but were routed by the police.

JUDGMENT DISMISSES CITY FIREMAN'S SUIT

Mr. Justice Morrison Finds That Council Had Power to Order Discharge of Captain Ziegler Last Summer

By the terms of a judgment delivered by Mr. Justice Morrison yesterday, Frederick W. Ziegler, former captain in the city fire department, who was dismissed from the service last July, loses his fight for reinstatement in his old position, or, alternatively, for damages on the ground of wrongful dismissal. Trial of the action took place here two weeks ago, with Mr. John R. Green acting for the plaintiff, and Messrs. M. B. Jackson, K.C., and H. E. Pringle for the defendants.

Mr. Justice Morrison finds that the fire warden had authority to confirm Mr. Ziegler's dismissal by Fire Chief Vernon Stewart; and as to the justification for the dismissal, the language of the learned trial judge is "I cannot say. As given in evidence at the trial of the action, it was shown that on July 19 last the plaintiff was proceeding up Fort Street, in charge of a hook and ladder truck, to a fire call from Richmond Road.

In the narrow part of Fort Street, at the intersection of St. Charles Street, a street car bound east, which the fire truck was following closely, stopped; and to avoid a rear-end collision the plaintiff ordered Driver Thomas A. Headlap, who was also dismissed later, to swing out on the right. A disastrous collision with a westbound car ensued, in which both the truck and street car were put out of commission. Messrs. Ziegler and Headlap were immediately suspended by order of Chief Stewart, and their subsequent dismissal was confirmed by the fire warden.

It is understood on good authority that the plaintiff will appeal to the Court of Appeal from the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case.

Mr. Justice Morrison's decision is as follows:

Reasons for Judgment. The plaintiff at the time of the accident in question was a captain in the fire department of the city, and, after an investigation, which for the purpose of this case I find was sufficiently regular and adequate, he was dismissed. That in assuming there was good cause for his dismissal, the action by the Council was in conformity to the letter and spirit of the Municipal Act and perfectly legal.

The sections of the Municipal Act which were invoked are Section 26, Sub-section (4), Chapter 51, Municipal Act, 1914, which defines the power conferred upon the Mayor, but which powers are not exclusive.

Section 84, Sub-section 3 of the same Act by which the Council of the Corporation have power to pass by-laws for regulating the removal of its officers and servants. Pursuant to this power a by-law, No. 535, was passed authorizing rules in which provisions were made for the removal of members of the fire department. These rules were invoked by the fire chief on the occasion in question, by virtue of which he first suspended the plaintiff, and later, after further inquiry, dismissed him, which acts were duly confirmed by the Council. Section 465 was also referred to by counsel on behalf of the defendants in his submission that the fire chief has the power to dismiss a subordinate officer or member of his department.

Powers of Council. And last, Section 5, Chapter 44, Municipal Amendment, 1916, which provides that:

(1) The Council may by by-law provide for the appointment of officers of the corporation to fill or occupy

DR. BUSH OPENS AT PANTAGES TODAY

Great interest is being taken in the arrival of Dr. D. V. Bush, the psychologist, who, it is stated, has been making so great a sensation all through the States and in Vancouver, B.C. If his welcome in Victoria is as great as it has been in every place through which he has passed, then the Pantages Theatre no doubt will be packed long before 8 o'clock tonight.

The world, it is claimed, is hungry for what Dr. Bush is ready to give, as the people are seeking to find the treasures of life through the knowledge of the laws from which allegedly they have been disconnected by wrong living and wrong thinking. Dr. Bush says he comes to bring back the consciousness of those laws, and to put all in tune with the Infinite. Having fought his own way through against what he says were almost insurmountable obstacles, born with the consciousness of poverty in the home, with limitation on all sides, and the only chance of an education being through his own strenuous efforts, he has risen on the stepping stones of continual effort to the position he now holds as a lecturer. He is strong, practical, sympathetic and sincere. He claims to be the great universal brother in his understanding of another's needs. It is said that he sends the crowd away with happy faces and the realization that the desires of their hearts are close at hand. That the words, "too late," were never real, and that the bright dawn of a tomorrow shines for all, he says.

"The Bill will not let in Canadian wheat, but will raise to the American farmer the right to raise a bushel of wheat instead of transferring that right to Canada."—Mr. Fordney, in introducing the Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill which has shut millions of dollars worth of Canadian foodstuffs out of the United States market.

"If we are to build up a self-sustaining agriculture here at home, the farmer must be protected from unfair competition from those countries where agriculture is still being exploited."—President Harding. The very spot chosen to deliver this speech—Minnesota—shows that Harding had the Canadian North-West in mind.

WHILE ties of friendship unite Canada and the United States, the attitude of Uncle Sam is that of "Business First", and Canada cannot and should not hope for any consideration from the United States where the interests of the farmers and business people of that country are involved.

Uncle Sam has built the Fordney Tariff directly against Canadian agriculture, and new additional Tariff proposals are now under consideration to shut out from the United States Canadian goods of every kind.

These measures are due to the insistence of the American farmer that the United States market shall be retained exclusively for him and that the influx of Canadian farm products into that country must cease. They are also due to a like insistence of United States manufacturers and workers, who have seen their country develop tremendously and grow rich under a Protective Tariff, and who believe that a still further increase in Tariff is the only means of assuring continued prosperity.

CONTRAST THE ATTITUDE OF THE UNITED STATES LEADERS WITH THAT OF CANADA'S WOULD-BE LEADERS, CRERAR AND KING

Crerar proposes to allow American goods to enter the Canadian market free of duty.

King proposes that the present reasonable Tariff on the products of the American factory and farm shall be greatly reduced, and that the home market of the Canadian farmer and manufacturer alike shall be thrown open to our Southern neighbour, in the face of the United States Emergency tariff, which practically shuts out Canadian farm products from these markets, and also in the face of the permanent tariff now under consideration at Washington, which gives every promise of being even more drastic than the Emergency Tariff so far as our products are concerned.

In view of the attitude of the United States, what folly it is for Crerar and King to propose throwing open the Canadian market to a flood of both agricultural and manufactured products of the United States when there is not the slightest possibility of any compensative advantage to Canada.

Does any sane Canadian believe that Crerar or King, hat in hand, could persuade the United States Government to completely reverse its Tariff policies and agree to reciprocal trade in face of American public demand for a high protective Tariff?

The people of the United States conduct their affairs and protect themselves by the principle that "Business is business". Why should Canada do otherwise?

Unlike Crerar or King, MEIGHEN stands firm for a reasonable Tariff to protect all our industries—those of the farm, the sea, the mine, the forest, the factory, and for the building up of a bigger and better Canada through the full development of the home market.

FRIENDSHIP WITH THE UNITED STATES? YES, BY ALL MEANS!

BUT—

let us defend our home market, our industries, our farms, our workmen, our homes by the same methods as are used so effectively against us.

Let us work out our own destiny—that of a strong, self-contained nation within the British Empire group of Nations, courageous, masterful, self-reliant.

II. "The Old Order Changeth."

Although Col. Trelawney's house was not a large one, especially when compared with those in that part of Hampshire, it had a spacious, comfortable appearance. The garden surrounding it added to its attractiveness, and made it appear more homelike. Indeed, when the taxi stopped, and Trelawney got out and looked around him, it seemed a very pleasant of rest to a homesick man.

"It's just beautiful," he sighed contentedly, "just as I have thought of it during these lonely years."

But all thoughts of home and garden passed from him in a moment, for he heard the sound of voices, and the scamp of feet. A second later the door was opened, and he was met by two girls who rushed toward him.

"Why, Eleanor," he cried, as he kissed the older, and taller of the two, "I shouldn't have known you. And, by Jove, you are a pretty girl, too. As for little Peg; why, you young puss, what have you done with yourself?"

"Like Poppy, I've grown," replied the girl.

"You have grown," you make me feel an old man. You were a rascally, mischievous little thing, and now you are far taller than your mother. Still you are Dad's baby, aren't you?"

"Not much of a baby about me," retorted the girl saucily.

They were both good-looking girls. Eleanor, the older and taller of the two, had almost classical features, and a striking appearance generally. Peggy, the younger, although not yet eighteen years old, had a fine, well-developed figure. Both were attired in the latest fashion; each of their dresses were cut very low at the neck, while their skirts were so short that they exhibited much more of their lower limbs than their grandmothers would have considered necessary.

Colonel Trelawney's quick, observant eye took all this in at a glance, but he made no remark. Indeed, he was so happily excited that details of dress counted for little.

"But where's John?" he asked.

"Here, Father," said a youth coming forward. "I only wanted to give the girls the first kiss."

He was a quiet, thoughtful looking young fellow, just about nineteen. There was a family resemblance between him and the girls, but there was something in his face which suggested a difference of character. He seemed more reserved, more trustworthy.

Colonel Trelawney hesitated a moment, and then he put his arm around his shoulder and kissed him.

"God bless you, my boy," he said fervently.

John blushed a fiery red, while Peggy giggled. He was a sensitive fellow, and like other boys of his age, was not given to open manifestation of his feelings.

"Your mother has told me about you," went on the Colonel. "Of course, I'm immensely pleased that you've been wanted to help your mother. All the same, I'm sorry you didn't go on to the 'Varsity."

John shuffled awkwardly, and was silent. He had been steadily watching his father ever since he had entered the house, as if trying to make up his mind about him.

"But he's been such a comfort to me," interposed the mother. "I don't know what I should have done without him."

John looked more uncomfortable than ever, while Peggy laughed aloud, and then burst out singing.

"Our John's a pattern boy, a pattern boy—a pattern boy."

"Our John's a pattern boy—yes a pattern boy."

"Do be quiet, Peg," he exclaimed. "But you are," laughed the girl, "and it's only right Father should know it."

"Ah, well," broke in the Colonel. "It's good to see you all, even although I can't realize, even yet, that you are no longer children. But I must get used to that. In the mean-while we will have a great time together. After I've settled up a few things, I'm going to have a complete

Backache

Backache is the outstanding symptom of kidney disease. Women often make the mistake of attributing other causes and overlook the derangement of the kidneys until serious developments have made it difficult to obtain permanent relief.

This letter points to a treatment which has been so thoroughly tried and proven so effective in the great majority of cases that you cannot afford to overlook it when cause arises for its use.

Mr. Albert Brunet, R.R. No. 1, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the last two months, having been afflicted with kidney trouble. I used two doctors' medicine previous to this, without any good results. A friend told me to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the result has made me feel a good deal better. I have now used about six or eight boxes, and am completely relieved."

holiday. Come, you girls, kiss your old Dad again, and then we'll have dinner. Mother told me she'd arranged to put it off till I came home, so you'll be hungry."

"We are," answered Peggy. "Dinner will be ready in five minutes. Mrs. Trelawney informed them."

"Then I'll have a wash in the meantime," said the Colonel. "Oh, my little kiddies, God only knows how I've longed for this hour."

He found his way upstairs as he spoke, while the two girls exchanged significant glances. Eleanor had scarcely spoken a word since her father's first greeting, but she had never taken her eyes off him. She might have been trying to understand what kind of man he was. John was also silent, but the look in his eyes as he watched his father's upstairs spoke volumes.

During dinner the gathering was somewhat subdued. Possibly the fact that the head of the house sat at the head of the table had a restraining influence. After all, they were children when he went away, and for six years his controlling hand had been taken away from them. During that time Mrs. Trelawney had been solely responsible for everything, and she had, on her own confession, felt the burden of that responsibility very heavily.

More than once Colonel Trelawney looked searchingly from one face to another. The experience was as strange to him as to his family. To leave four children, to be for several years separated from them, and then to return home, and find them changed almost beyond recognition, made him feel almost like a stranger in his own house. His wife only had remained the same. The years of absence had scarcely changed her at all. She was the same loving, unselfish creature he had always known her to be; but the children puzzled him. Eleanor, as he could easily see, was intelligent, and self-contained. He saw at a glance, too, that her mother had little or no influence over her, and that she regarded her opinion as of little importance. Indeed, she spoke to her mother in a patronizing way, as though the older woman were out of date, and therefore entirely ignorant of what was going on in the world. As for Peggy, he could not help feeling a little disappointed in her. She was very pretty, but she had already gone far towards spoiling her complexion by an abundant use of powder; and there was a look of antagonism in her eyes which he could not quite understand.

He did not pass any judgment, however. He was still under the excitement of his home-coming, and he felt supremely happy at the thought that he was sitting at his own table with his own family around him. As for John, the Colonel's heart warmed as he looked at him.

"I shall be able to make a pal of him," he thought. "He's a fine lad, not much like the idea of the idea of his being at an engineering place instead of at Oxford. But I must have a talk with him about that. When I've gone into the state of my finances I shall be able to decide what I can do."

"If only Trev were here, we should all be home together," he said aloud. Presently, he knew it can't be helped, but I would have given a good deal to have him with us."

"Oh, Trev's all right," laughed Peggy. "He's no end of a swell. I don't know how many hearts he's broken already."

The Colonel made no reply. He did not seem quite sure of his ground, and his eyes were passing quickly from face to face as if endeavoring to form judgment.

"If he can't get leave I shall go to see him at the first opportunity," was all he said, before going on to relate some of his experiences during the years he had been away.

The evening passed quickly away. The Colonel was blissfully happy at being home again, while years had seemed to have rolled from his wife at the thought of having him by her side.

"Well, what do you think of them?" she asked, when at length they had retired to their room.

"John's splendid," he replied heartily. "Just splendid."

"He is, isn't he? Of course the girls laugh at him, but there isn't a nicer boy living."

"Why should the girls laugh at him?"

"Oh, they say he's such a sober-sided—and—and what do you think of the girls?"

"Eleanor seems very clever, but a bit reserved. I can't quite make her out yet."

"No, she isn't easy to understand. Of course she's very handsome, and very high spirited, and—has all sorts of ideas. She's got beyond me. In fact they both have."

"In what way? Tell me."

Mrs. Trelawney hesitated a moment, and seemed on the point of answering him, but decided to be silent.

"I expect I'm rather old-fashioned," she said presently, "and I'm not a bit clever. Oh, Trevor, I am glad you are home. You see, things have changed so, and I can't adapt myself to present-day methods of going on. Of course the girls call me passe, and laugh at me generally; but I am sure things were better when I was a girl. We respected and obeyed our parents as a matter of course. But you'll understand better when you've been home a few days."

The Colonel remained silent, listening thoughtfully to what his wife was saying.

"Everybody seems alike," went on Mrs. Trelawney. "Mrs. Spencer—you remember her—was telling me only a few days ago that her girls were demanding liberties which she as a girl never dreamed of. They are only the same as Eleanor and Peggy, but they each carry latchkeys, and laugh at the idea of a chaperon when they go to a dance. Only last Friday they came home at three o'clock in the morning, and neither of them would tell her where they had been. In fact they seemed being asked."

Colonel Trelawney still remained silent. He saw what his wife's words suggested, but thought it better to say nothing.

Meanwhile both girls found their way upstairs, while John went into the room which in past years had been called the "Treadmill." It was the room which, when they had a governess, had been used as a school-room.

"Well," queried Peggy, when they were alone.

"I see trouble," replied Eleanor. "Well, trouble or no trouble, I'm dying for a cigar. It's the first evening I've spent without smoking for ages. Give me one."

"Haven't got any here. I left them down in the 'Treadmill'."

"Then let's go down and get them. I can't sleep without a smoke."

"We'll have to be careful. As you can easily see, he's one of the old-fashioned order, and may be shocked."

"Well, he must be shocked, that's all. I'm not one to hide my light under a bushel. Besides, everybody smokes now. I scarcely know a girl who doesn't have her packet of cigarettes a day. Still, as you say, we'll have to be careful. He'll not be played with. Like you, I see trouble. But let's go down to the 'Treadmill,' and smoke there."

The girls went quietly downstairs, and found their way into their old schoolroom.

"Hello, Johnny darling," exclaimed Peggy. "What are you doing here? It's time for children like you to be in bed."

"What are you doing here, then?" retorted John.

"We've come for a smoke," replied Peggy. "We hadn't any baccy upstairs, so we came here."

John looked at them steadily for a few seconds, as if afraid of him, then he replied:

"Afraid? Not a bit. What is there to be afraid of?"

"Nothing, if you play the game," was the boy's reply.

"Don't be silly," cried Peggy, lighting a cigarette, and throwing herself in an armchair.

There was a silence for a few seconds, then Eleanor broke out: "Well, Mother's darling, what do you think of him?"

"He's splendid," replied the boy. "He's just great. As the same, we are in for a new dispensation. A good thing, too," he added, after a few seconds' silence.

"Boosh!" replied Peggy. "If Father had been home, these last two years, things would have been different, and you know it."

"Boosh," repeated Peggy. "I'm just going on in the same way."

"No you are not. As a proof of it, why didn't you smoke when he was with us?"

"Why, my dear boy, there's nothing in smoking."

"I don't say there is, but why didn't you?"

"Oh, well, we naturally wanted to see which way the wind blew. You see, he's at a dangerous age. You are giggled, and of course Eleanor and I wanted to sum him up first."

"And what do you think of him?"

"Oh, I suppose he's all right; but if he thinks he is going to find us a pair of 'antiques,' he'll pretty soon find out his mistake. He'll have to come to our ways."

"More likely to be the other way. I hope so, anyhow."

"Look here, pattern boy. As you are going to play the game?" asked Eleanor.

"I've nothing to do with it," replied John. "It's time he did come. You've been just doing what you liked with Mother, and it's done you no good. As for Dad, he'll pretty soon find out his mistake. He'll have to come to our ways."

"He's the most splendid man I ever saw. Any one can see at a glance that he's kind and just, but he'll stand no nonsense. I watched him look in his eye when one of you said something he didn't like. He didn't say anything, but you'll find out your mistake if you think he's going to allow things to run loose. He may be old-fashioned; but he's a gentleman through and through, and you'll find that he'll be obeyed."

"I'll admit there's a look in his quiet grey eyes which is a bit disconcerting," Eleanor spoke as though she were thinking deeply.

"Oh, I'm prepared for a — of a row," rejoined Peggy, glancingly, as she crossed her legs, and puffed at her cigarette.

"You wouldn't say that in Dad's presence," John said quietly.

"Why, what's the harm in it? Every girl swears now."

"Not nice girls," returned the boy. "Thank you," and Peggy's eyes blazed. "Then we are nice girls?"

"What's the use of getting into a passion?" was John's reply. "You know as well as I do that you've picked up with a fast set. As a consequence real nice girls are dropping you. There's the Newhams, for example, they—"

"Who cares for the Newhams? As everybody knows, they are just a narrow-minded, church-going lot who are tied to their mammy's apron strings. What's the use of living if you can't enjoy yourself?"

"I believe Dad will want us to enjoy ourselves," replied John, "but anyone can see, with half an eye, that he's as keen as a razor, and that he won't have you going to such dances as you have gone to; neither will he have such bouncers as that fellow Barnes coming to the house."

"Look here, Johnny. If you tell Dad anything about Jim, I'll—I'll never speak to you again."

"There'll be no need for me to tell him," replied the boy. "If Barnes comes here, he'll see for himself. But I tell you, he'll show him the door in double quick time."

"If Jim isn't allowed to come here, I shall go to him, that's all," answered Peggy quickly. "Besides, why should not he come here? I'm going to choose my own friends, and if Dad thinks he's going to dictate to me, he'll find out his mistake. I had a good mind to let him come tonight, but I thought it might be going a bit too far."

"I expect the matter has told our long-lost father all about him by this time," rejoined Eleanor.

"No she hasn't," laughed the younger girl. "I put the fear of God into her last night. I told her that if she tried to prejudice him against Jim, or said anything about him, I'd run away with him."

"But you don't care anything about him."

"That's all you know. Anyhow, he's good fun, and he's one of the best dancers in London. In any case, if our long-lost father thinks we are going to be like nuns shut up in a nunnery, the sooner he knows the truth the better."

"Personally I can't imagine what you can see in him," said Eleanor. "For that matter, I can't understand girls who are forever ogling men. Of course they are all right in their way. They take one to the theatre, or to supper, but as for the love business, and marrying, it's just sickening. I think any girl is a fool who gets married."

"Oh, you're cold-blooded."

"I try to be sensible, anyhow. Life isn't a very long business, and the idea of getting married and having babies, and that sort of thing is simply nauseous."

"I know that's why you turn the cold shoulder to Rod Ravenscroft?"

"Rod Ravenscroft is all right as a friend, and if I wanted to marry I'd as soon have him as anybody. But as I've just said, love and marriage make no appeal to me. Still, I don't want to judge anyone else. We must all live our own lives."

"That's what I mean to do," cried Peggy. "And that's why I don't mean to let any one interfere between me and Jim."

"You will find that Dad will interfere," interposed John.

"Then he'll be told to mind his own business, that's all."

"It is his business," retorted Peggy. "How's it his business? If I'm fond of Jim, it's my own affair."

"But the fellow is such a bouncer."

"Bouncer yourself," retorted Peggy, with flashing eyes. "And a good-looking bouncer at that. Of course he's fond of life, but so am I, and I'm not going to stand any interference either from you, or anyone else. I told Mother so last night."

John shrugged his shoulders. "Time will tell," he remarked quietly.

"I suppose that means that you'll tell," retorted Peggy. "Well, tell, I don't care."

"Hark! What's that?" cried Eleanor.

At that moment there was the sound of footsteps on the gravel outside, and a low tapping at the window pane.

Peggy's face flushed crimson. "That'll be Jim," she whispered. "I told him not to come tonight, but—"

"But surely you are not going out to him?" said John as he saw his sister preparing to leave the room.

"Of course I am, was the girl's reply. "I'll be back in ten minutes."

ACCUSE ROTARIAN OF "PURPLE PAST"

Past President Acquitted of "Serious Charge" by Jury of Fellow Members

Before Mr. Justice James Hunter, in the Rotary Court, Empress Hotel ballroom, yesterday, Jack T. Scott, a past president, was acquitted of the charges of having a "purple past" and of being late for weekly luncheons without just cause.

Although the indictment was against a single prisoner, it was explained that the purpose of the session was to give Rotarians an opportunity of allying in judgment on themselves in respect to Rotary standards of conduct and punctual and regular attendance at meetings.

The accused was defended by Mr. Percy Abell, Mr. Lester Patrick acted for the prosecution. Mr. James Graham officiated as sheriff. Mr. D. O'Connell and Howard Gibson were not so severe, and their evidence, admittedly misapprehension, of the club personnel, garbed in the blue raiment of officers of the law.

Damaging evidence against Scott was given by Mr. James H. Beatty and Mr. Wallace Terry. Messrs. J. D. O'Connell and Howard Gibson were not so severe, and their evidence, admittedly misapprehension, of the club personnel, garbed in the blue raiment of officers of the law.

Portugal Expects Revolution

MADEIRA, Nov. 24.—Dispatches from the Portuguese frontier today report that another revolution is brewing in Portugal, and that the troops in Lisbon have been confined to their barracks in readiness for eventualities. Carvalho Mesquita, the message says, is reported to be behind the revolutionary preparation.

TROTZKY DECLARES FOR MORE MUNITIONS

MOSCOW, Nov. 23.—On his return from a visit to the munition works of Tula, Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik minister of war, contributed an article to the Pravda, in which he declares that the works must continue to turn out munitions for the defence of Soviet Russia.

"The Tula plant," says the article, "must continue working on full time. This is a Winter of strain, and Tula must remain the red army's great shop for producing rifles and ammunition, so that the red army, which is superior to the Polish army, may have weapons to defend Soviet Russia in the event that General Plinski continues trying to throw General Petlura's hands against Russia."

EIGHT-HOUR BILL
GOES TO DEFEAT

erson, Pattullo, Hart, Harrow, Whiteside, Buckham, Anderson, Pauline, Rumney, Howes, Jones, W. A. Mc-Kenzie, Lister, Hunter, Clearhouse, Pooley, A. McDonald, Pearson and Catherwood.—24.

Following the disposition of the eight-hour measure, Mr. Major Burde came the other measures passed last year on a similar principle of effectiveness when other provinces adopt similar measures; those being the Night Employment of Women Act;
the Night Employment of Young Persons Act; the Employment of Children Act and the Maternity Protection Act, to which Labor members had introduced amendments to bring them into effect on May 1 next, irrespective of what the other provinces
may do.

Division Demanded

The Labor members were determined to put the House members on record, and when the motion for the second reading came to a vote they insisted upon a division in each case,
which was taken and the motions defeated.

Major Burde, who was in a militant mood, called attention to the fact that "the lady member for Vancouver was not present, nor was the member for the Island."

Frontier Oliver, who had moved
the second reading of the bill providing for Night Employment of Women Act, did not speak when the motion for the second reading came up,
a circumstance which called for some criticism from the member for Alberni.

Stating that he had taken the opportunity to interview a large number of employers in lumber and other industries, as well as members of the Trades and Labor Council at New Westminster, he said:

"The change, however, continued
the Attorney-General, might not bring
about the desired result, but this matter was one which should be considered,
he believed, in two ways, one, that in
the interests of production it would
be desirable to bring out a general
eight-hour day, and, secondly, that this was even more desirable in the interests of labor itself. A few months ago every member of the House accepted the principle, which,
if sound then, was sound now."

Federal Politics

Mr. Whitehead pointed to the fact that a large part of the competition
which the lumber industry has to face
comes from Eastern Canada and the Eastern States, where the hours of
work are from ten to twelve and, in the Southern States, negroes were employed at less wages than were being
paid to Orientals in this Province.
For instance, he said, the fruit box
manufacturing industry was in a competition in the East as well as
in Japan was keenly felt. Japanese
manufacturers could import
British Columbia lumber, and ship
it and ship back to British Columbia and sell at a lower figure than
could the local industries in this market. In the East and in Japan,
United States manufacturers with
negro labor, working long hours,
could undersell the British Columbia
producer. The Attorney-General said
that could they work two shifts of
eight hours each they would do actually under the present situation of the export trade only one shift could be worked. The domestic market would not keep one-quarter of the mills of the Province working, he claimed. It was his opinion that until some providential arrangement was reached whereunder all Provinces would be placed on the same basis, such legislation as proposed was not sound.

"At the same time," went on the
member for New Westminster, "our
mills are not, to my mind, acting fairly towards white labor. Many criticisms might well be replaced by whites, and I know there are a lot of
capable white workers who would like employment in the mills if they could get it." The lumber men, he considered, should wake up to this.

Major Burde—"They'll wake up if
you vote for my bill."

Mr. Whitehead went on to cite the case of one lower Mainland mill
which, in 1919, had taken on white
workmen but, he said, he had been informed that not more than seventy
per cent were on the job at one time
and in three weeks they stopped
work three times because they considered the weather was not suitable
for work. It cost that millman $1,700.
Mr. Whitehead said, and he cited the case of another lumberman, a logger,
who on his last year's operations lost
$75,000. He said that in the first eight months of the present year, of
thirteen mills operating but two
showed profit, the average earnings
of the lot showed a deficit. In view
of these conditions he considered the
time inopportune for enacting the bill.

As an Employer

Mr. McRae (Yale), as an employer
during the last thirty years, held that a man could do more work in eight hours than in ten. He did not allow
any of his men to work more than
eight hours, but if there was a rush
order he always put his hand in his pocket in appreciation of any extra
work that had been done.

Mr. F. A. Pauline (Sanich) stated
that the Legislature had already gone
at the Spring session, when the judgment of the House was that a reasonable time should be allowed to lapse
to see what other provinces were going to do in the matter. A year ought to be allowed for this, and only seven months had gone by. He was in sympathy with the bill, having once run
a factory.

Mr. Pauline went on to say that on account of insufficient time having
elapsed, he was not prepared to support the bill. If, however, the bill
was not passed now, and again came
before the House when it next met,
he would be on the side of the member for Alberni with regard to the amendment.

Hon. J. W. deR. Farris pointed out
that the bill was not a Government
measure. He occupied the position
of Minister of Labor, but the position
he was taking was that of an individual and he tried to approach the question on its merits. It had been pointed out to him that, representing
as he did a large working community
like Vancouver, it would be very impolitic for him to oppose the bill. He said he had no hesitation in submitting to the members of the House the principles on which he was going and
which he believed to be sound at the present time. He did not believe he had ever received a Liberal vote for
any promise he had made, but from
his association with his constituents,
along with the Minister of Mines he
had introduced eight-hour legislation,

stating at that time that the legislation they were bringing in was establishing the principle of an eight-
hour working day in the Province,
and that it would go on from step to
step until there was a general eight-
hour day.

An Accident

That legislation, stated Hon. Mr.
Farris, was introduced five or six months ago and it was only by accident that the present session came in the same year. At this stage, following a series of interruptions from Major Burde, the Attorney-General proceeded to the Speaker, who suggested to the major that when a gentleman had the floor he should be showed courtesy.

Continuing, Hon. Mr. Farris said that certain treaty obligations relative to labor legislation had been created,
followed by the convention in Washington, which was ratified at Paris.
It was pointed out in the House that the House accepted the principle, which the obligations of Canada, or any of the provinces of Canada, could be carried out. The Federal Government put the matter up to the different provinces, and British Columbia was the first, and up to date the only province, which had responded,
and put legislation on the statute book. If there had been any bad faith it was not on the part of British Columbia, but on the part of the Federal Government.

Hon. Mr. Farris stated that the principle involved in last year's legislation was that it was desirable to have a general eight-hour day in Canada and to have it in British Columbia. If that principle was sound then, it was sound today. The prospect of general legislation being consummated did not now appear probable, because the Federal Government at Ottawa was now on trial before the people of the country, and there was every indication that, two weeks from today, that Government would be out of office by the people of Canada.

the Attorney-General, might not bring
about the desired result, but this matter was one which should be considered,
he believed, in two ways, one, that in
the interests of production it would
be desirable to bring out a general
eight-hour day, and, secondly, that
this was even more desirable in the interests of labor itself. A few months ago every member of the House accepted the principle, which,
if sound then, was sound now."

Federal Politics

Mr. Whitehead pointed to the fact
that a large part of the competition
which the lumber industry has to face
comes from Eastern Canada and the Eastern States, where the hours of
work are from ten to twelve and, in
the Southern States, negroes were employed at less wages than were being
paid to Orientals in this Province.
For instance, he said, the fruit box
manufacturing industry was in a competition in the East as well as
in Japan was keenly felt. Japanese
manufacturers could import
British Columbia lumber, and ship
it and ship back to British Columbia and sell at a lower figure than
could the local industries in this
market. In the East and in Japan,
United States manufacturers with
negro labor, working long hours,
could undersell the British Columbia
producer. The Attorney-General said
that could they work two shifts of
eight hours each they would do actually under the present situation of the
export trade only one shift could be
worked. The domestic market would
not keep one-quarter of the mills of
the Province working, he claimed. It
was his opinion that until some providential arrangement was reached
whereunder all Provinces would be placed on the same basis, such legislation as proposed was not sound.

"At the same time," went on the
member for New Westminster, "our
mills are not, to my mind, acting
fairly towards white labor. Many criticisms might well be replaced by
whites, and I know there are a lot of
capable white workers who would
like employment in the mills if they could get it." The lumber men, he considered, should wake up to this.

Major Burde—"They'll wake up if
you vote for my bill."

Mr. Whitehead went on to cite the
case of one lower Mainland mill
which, in 1919, had taken on white
workmen but, he said, he had been informed that not more than seventy
per cent were on the job at one time
and in three weeks they stopped
work three times because they considered the weather was not suitable
for work. It cost that millman $1,700.
Mr. Whitehead said, and he cited the
case of another lumberman, a logger,
who on his last year's operations lost
$75,000. He said that in the first eight months of the present year, of
thirteen mills operating but two
showed profit, the average earnings
of the lot showed a deficit. In view
of these conditions he considered the
time inopportune for enacting the bill.

As an Employer

Mr. McRae (Yale), as an employer
during the last thirty years, held that
a man could do more work in eight
hours than in ten. He did not allow
any of his men to work more than
eight hours, but if there was a rush
order he always put his hand in his
pocket in appreciation of any extra
work that had been done.

Mr. F. A. Pauline (Sanich) stated
that the Legislature had already gone
at the Spring session, when the judgment of the House was that a reasonable time should be allowed to lapse
to see what other provinces were going to do in the matter. A year ought
to be allowed for this, and only seven
months had gone by. He was in sympathy with the bill, having once run
a factory.

Mr. Pauline went on to say that on account of insufficient time having
elapsed, he was not prepared to support the bill. If, however, the bill
was not passed now, and again came
before the House when it next met,
he would be on the side of the member for Alberni with regard to the
amendment.

Hon. J. W. deR. Farris pointed out
that the bill was not a Government
measure. He occupied the position
of Minister of Labor, but the position
he was taking was that of an individual and he tried to approach the
question on its merits. It had been pointed out to him that, representing
as he did a large working community
like Vancouver, it would be very im-
politic for him to oppose the bill. He said he had no hesitation in submitting to the members of the House the
principles on which he was going and
which he believed to be sound at the present time. He did not believe he had ever received a Liberal vote for
any promise he had made, but from
his association with his constituents,
along with the Minister of Mines he
had introduced eight-hour legislation,

stating at that time that the legislation they were bringing in was establishing the principle of an eight-
hour working day in the Province,
and that it would go on from step to
step until there was a general eight-
hour day.
